Abstract—Over the years, the rapid development of China's cities has created a huge urban-rural gap. This dualized economic structure has brought various institutional restrictions and obstacles to young migrant workers. Working in the city, the young migrant workers are carrying the dream of a city. However, it is difficult to truly integrate into the city. As the main body of youth education and development, Universities and the Communist Youth League have the unshirkable obligation. The Youth League Committee is a mass organization that keeps the party in contact with young people. And colleges and universities are the core of youth cultural education and cultural propaganda. University libraries are the main front for colleges and universities to carry out cultural education for young people. University libraries need to work closely with township committees to provide timely and comprehensive social services for young migrant workers in different places in order to promote the faster integration of urban migrants into urban life, and to find the right direction of spiritual culture.

Keywords—migrant workers; university libraries; socialization services

I. INTRODUCTION

Young migrant workers are the main force in the current urban development and construction of China. They are characterized by decentralization, diversity and mobility. Due to the geographical location of the youth working in different places and the ideological culture of the city where they are located, there are big differences in living habits, social development background and personal qualities, making it difficult for them to quickly integrate into urban life. It has brought enormous difficulties to the economic construction and social management of the city. University libraries have unique advantages in social and cultural resources and cultural communication. And it has the functions of serving the public society and assisting the government in managing. Therefore, university libraries must work closely with township and town league committees to provide social services for migrant workers in various cities to integrate into society and personal growth to ensure the high-speed and stable development of society and cities.

II. ANALYSIS OF THE STATUS QUO OF RURAL MIGRANT WORKERS LIVING IN CITIES

A. The Current Status of Urban Life of Young Migrant Workers in the Field

The development and construction of the city is inseparable from the youth of migrant workers. They are the main force for the rapid development of the city. However, most of them who work in the bottom of society have lower average ages and lower levels of education. This has resulted in their generally low incomes, making it difficult for most migrant workers in the field to withstand the high levels of consumption in their cities. In addition, most migrant workers in the field belong to the category of “temporary workers”. Both work status and income situation are extremely unstable. The quality of life of young migrant workers in the city is low. In fact, “Being able to settle in the city” is their greatest life appeal. When urban life is facing difficulties, the vast majority of young migrant workers in the field will choose to face themselves alone. They lack trust in social service agencies, and not willing to talk to strangers about their distress. Over time, it will cause emotional temper and depression, and become an unstable factor in social development.

B. Status of Demand for Urban Services by Young Migrant Workers in the Field

To meet the development needs of young migrant workers in the field to maintain the stability of the current urban social development, it is very necessary to guarantee the development prospects of young people. The issue of livelihood has always been a major problem in the work of young migrant workers in cities. The root cause of this phenomenon is that their average level of education is low. It is difficult to apply for a position with a higher income. The general appeal of young migrant workers in the field is the need to pass certain vocational skills training to improve their personal qualities in order to achieve jobs with higher skill levels. The fundamental goal is to improve the working environment and raise wages. In turn, fundamental changes in the quality of urban life are realized. A small number of young migrant workers also want to improve their amateur cultural life through knowledge and culture to meet the spiritual needs of their work.

C. The Importance of Migrant Workers in Different Places to Urban Development and Construction

As the main force of urban construction, the role of young migrant workers in the economic development of cities is unquestionable. They work hard to change every inch of the city. Faced with the new situation of global economic integration, traditional technology can no longer adapt to the current rapid development of urban construction. There are also many high-end talents with creative ability, high comprehensive quality and strong comprehension ability among young migrant workers in the field. These young people are no different from an important strategic resource for the development of cities. They are an important part of urban development transformation and production reengineering. Making reasonable use of these youth resources and deploying the structure of young migrant workers will effectively promote the adjustment of the industrial structure of the city, change the economic growth mode of the city, and promote the rapid development of the regional economy.

III. THE NECESSITY OF UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES AND TOWNSHIP LEAGUE COMMITTEES TO SERVE YOUNG MIGRANT WORKERS

With the continuous development of the economy and the continuous expansion of the city, it is obviously a drop in the bucket to rely solely on the government to provide public services to young migrant workers. A single functional department is not able to meet the basic needs of many young migrant workers. University libraries need to actively cooperate with various township league committees to provide socialized services for young migrant workers and to give full play to its special functional attributes, and actively and broadly participate in the government's social affairs management work.

A. It Is an Inevitable Result in a Complex Environment to Provide Socialized Services by University Libraries and Communist League Committees for Young Migrant Workers

The 19th National Congress of the Communist Party of China put forward the idea of socialism with Chinese characteristics in the new era. It gives a new theoretical guidance to the development and construction of cities in the new era and the solution of urban-rural integration. Under the new era, university libraries and township league committees should comprehensively promote the ideological construction of young migrant workers. It is imperative to effectively implement the main ideas for providing socialized services to young migrant workers to meet the changing needs of new developments and the urgent needs of the new situation. Comrade Xi Jinping's new era of socialism with Chinese characteristics sees the service of youth and the service of urban development as an organic whole. The development of urban and rural migrant workers has been scientifically divided into dual needs. University libraries and township league committees use their own functional attributes to realize the socialized service of young migrant workers and it is the fundamental manifestation of the development environment complexity.

B. It Is an Extension of Government Functions for University Libraries and Township League Committees to Provide Socialized Services for Young Migrant Workers

With the continuous development of the social economy, the main body of society has gradually moved toward diversification. The increasing number of young workers working in different places has also brought more complicated changes to the management of youth affairs in cities. In the face of this surge in youth management, the government's ability to govern is also stretched. For more specific social service management, it is possible to only "look at the ocean". During this transition period, the government will continue to decentralize its rights. The power of social organizations can be used to improve the social service management of young migrant workers in the field, among many social organizations, university libraries and township committees at all levels have unique advantages. The effective combination between them can reposition their functions. It can actively assist the government to realize socialized service management for young people and truly achieve the goal of collaborative governance.

C. It Is the Inherent Requirements of Their Functions for University Libraries and Township League Committees to Provide Social Services for Young Migrant Workers

The township youth league committee, as the social organization at the grassroots level of the Communist Youth League, shoulders three important tasks: first of all, it is to do a good job of the party's assistants and reserve forces. Second, to help the party connect with the young people, the third is to support the important social pillar of the government. In the process of providing socialized services to young migrant workers in the field, the organic combination of university libraries and township league committees can better fulfill the glorious mission entrusted to them by the party and the government. University libraries can better provide academic support for social, cultural, technical, and economic aspects of young migrant workers to meet the demands of young migrant workers and to fully mobilize the enthusiasm of young migrant workers in different places, and work closely with the township youth league committees to better improve the work organization system and improve the intrinsic attributes of the Communist Youth League, meet the extended needs of government management, and more effectively meet the real demands of young workers in different places.

IV. UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES AND TOWNSHIP LEAGUE COMMITTEES PROVIDE AN EFFECTIVE WAY FOR SOCIALIZED SERVICES TO YOUNG MIGRANT WORKERS

A. Improving the Youth Service Stations in Different Places

University libraries combine their main functional attributes, closely integrated with the township committee, and establish a complete set of youth service station system for off-site work. The university library and the township youth league committee bear the role of a "link", and combine youth things with the social management of the government. The establishment of a youth service station for off-site work in university libraries can better provide employment services and cultural guidance for young migrant workers, help young migrant workers to better learn relevant vocational skills and enhance cultural literacy. And provide professional employment guidance for young migrant workers in different places, and help young migrant workers to improve their "happiness index" and better complete their career planning.

B. Construction of a Cultural and Sports Activity System for Young Migrant Workers

University libraries need to work closely with township committees, actively communicate with government functions, strive for government financial support and attract other social funding to establish a set of perfect social and cultural activities service stations for young migrant workers. The goal of the Social and Sports Activity Service Station is not only to provide support and care for the community of migrant workers in different places as well as the love from the party and the government. It is also necessary to make use of the advantages of this non-governmental organization to help young migrant workers to achieve the optimal distribution of resources, realize the role of youth in different places and the government and the community, reasonably solve the problem of human resource allocation, and at the same time serve the young migrant workers, and maximize the benefits of urban development and construction.

C. Providing a Life-long Service Platform for Young Migrant Workers

The university library and the township youth league committee can work closely together to establish a comprehensive life service platform for the young migrant workers: first of all, use the advantages of digital libraries to keep in close contact with township committees at all levels, providing new development methods and working methods for young migrant workers; secondly, regular cultural preaching activities are held to communicate effectively with young migrant workers. It is beneficial to improve their safety awareness and legal awareness, and teach them to use legal weapons to solve various problems encountered in urban life; third, establish a caring system and use advanced technologies such as multimedia to help young migrant workers solving their children's education problems and caring for psychological counseling activities to help young children working in different places to get rid of psychological barriers and environmental adaptation problems, and solve the actual family problems of young migrant workers in different places.

V. CONCLUSION

To sum up, young migrant workers are the backbone of China's urban development and construction. University libraries and township league committees need to be closely integrated to help government functions to do a good job in extending social services, give full play to the special functional attributes of their own social organizations to establish a complete set of social service system for young migrant workers. Starting from the practical difficulties of working in the urban life of young people in different places, it helps them solving the various problems encountered in urban life one by one to meet the needs of stable social development and to maximize the benefits of urban economic development.
